MAZHABI SIKH PEOPLE

Join us in praying for this neglected people group!

- Also called: Majhbi, Mazhbi
- Estimated population: almost 3 million
- Main Language(s): Punjabi, Hindi
- Main Religion: Sikhism (also Hinduism)

The Mazhabi Sikh people live mostly in India's northwestern state of Punjab, with some also living in the neighboring Haryana and Rajasthan states. Bordering Pakistan, Punjab is the heart of India's Sikh community and Sikhism worship. Historically, Mazhabi Sikhs left Hinduism in favor of Sikhism, but many are still worshipping Hindu gods. Mazhabi Sikhs are looked down upon, exploited with lower status jobs, and often forced to live in poverty-stricken areas. Many being unemployed and uneducated suffer from addictions. Currently, only a little more than one percent of them are Christians, and it is unknown how many of those are evangelical.

Since 2022, All Nations' fieldworker Anne* has facilitated church planting and Pioneer Business Planting trainings in different parts of Punjab. An agriculture business has started along with plans for several other businesses, including a micro credit company. Her hope and vision are to multiply church planters among the Mazhabi Sikh and to support them in starting businesses that will help them become self-sustainable.

- them to experience joy as they partner with God right where they are
- protection from flooding waters that destroy homes and spoil harvests

For Anne and her team, please pray for...
