- Languages: Yao (main)
Chichewa, Portuguese, Swahili,

- Main Religion: Islam

OVERVIEW

The Yawo people of Southeast Africa mostly live in Malawi, Mozambique, and Tanzania, with a smaller population in Zambia. They are distinguished by their language and strong cultural identity, which transcend the national borders. Influenced by the Swahili-Arab traders of the late 1800s, the Yawo practice Islam intermingled with witchcraft, ancestral worship and animism. They are poor, predominately illiterate, and suffer greatly from divorce and HIV/AIDS as a polygamist society.

All Nations has amazing work happening in Malawi under the leadership of field workers Oliver and Rhoda, Agnes and Gibson, Rebman and Ellen, and Gladson and Shadrach. Specifically, Oliver and Rhoda, both from Malawi, currently live in Mzuzu, where they are discipling many with a heart to go to the unreached in Mozambique, Tanzania and Zambia. Previously, they were leaders of an explosive church planting movement in Mangochi, in southern Malawi, from 2012-2018. Their ministry started by praying for many people with diseases and demons. As word spread, they began discipling small groups, teaching them to pray for others, with signs and wonders following.

✓ Yes, All Nations, I want to support this and all the programs and other ways All Nations reaches the neglected for Jesus.

- Also, pray for wisdom and blessing upon Oliver and Rhoda who have purchased four acres of land as a future investment for farming and starting businesses.
